2023 in Review

In 2023, we released 5 issues of the Community College Health Study Newsletter which reached over 250 subscribers. These newsletters covered some of our preliminary findings from the Community College Health Study. We also provided additional resources such as links to evidence-based programs, funding opportunities, and downloadable supplemental materials.

1

Characteristics of college campuses and students in the Community College Health Study

2

Community college students' experiences with previous school-based sex education

3

Sexual and relationship health of community college students

4

What constitutes an "evidence-based" program and resources for identifying sexual health programs

5

How community college students' previous sex education is related to their current sexual behaviors
