

Community College Health Study

Reminder: We are seeking educators and students to participate in a paid, online advisory panel!

This is a reminder that the Community College Health Study Team is offering an opportunity for educators and students to participate in a paid, online advisory panel to provide feedback as we develop a new resource for sexual health education. We want to make sure that community college students and personnel are represented on this advisory panel! Feedback from educators and students will help us make the new resource engaging and useful.

Participants will be asked to review an online resource, participate in a virtual focus group, and complete two additional online feedback tasks.

Participation takes a total of 5 hours or less.

Participants can receive up to $125 in Amazon gift cards.

Participants can schedule at their convenience.
